Based on the demand of the sector, we have created two products for stripping: shampoo and powder. Stripping is a technique that is used fundamentally in wire-haired dogs, among which we find breeds such as westies, fox terriers or dachshunds, as well as mixed-breed dogs, through which the old layer of hair is removed to make way for the new layer.

High professional Vegan Cosmetics for Pets

It is a completely painless technique for pets, it is only about removing the layer of dead hair and a very attractive and beneficial result for their health is achieved.

The new stripping shampoo has been formulated with aloe vera and rosehip oil, it is especially indicated for dogs with hard hair to apply after stripping. Aloe vera and rosehip oil will soothe the dog's skin after performing the technique.

The powder has been designed to professionally perform the stripping technique on wire-haired dogs.

Regarding the method of use, it is recommended to perform the stripping technique with the powder on dirty hair and once the technique is done, wash the hair with the stripping shampoo, apply it directly and rinse with water.

As for the benefits of this technique, it is beneficial because through stripping, we remove the secondary hair, while maintaining the primary layer, which has health benefits for the skin and coat.

We must know that the hair of dogs is divided into two layers, the primary and the secondary, this first layer being the one that acts as a protective barrier for the dog against external agents, while the last layer is made up of finer and weaker hair. works as a coat. Therefore, for your well-being, we recommend performing the stripping technique with the use of our products.

Take care and pamper your pet as you take care of YOU.
